Mae Beth Marshall—Pass Christian, MS

CDFI Helps Couple Go Home Again

Hurricane Katrina displaced Mae Beth Marshall and her husband Caesar from their Mississippi Gulf Coast home, damaging their house and treasured belongings and separating the couple into different locations. After two years, Mae Beth and Caesar were ready to return to Pass Christian. Hope Enterprise Corporation’s Home Again Project, which provided post-Katrina mortgage financing and recovery consultation services to people in coastal Mississippi, helped them get back into a home in the same place their original house stood.

“This home means God meant for me to get through all this and end back here. I’m back. I’m here.”

Mae Beth Marshall
Homeowner

Impact
• Elderly couple returns to their longtime community after Hurricane Katrina.

(Story published: 2015)